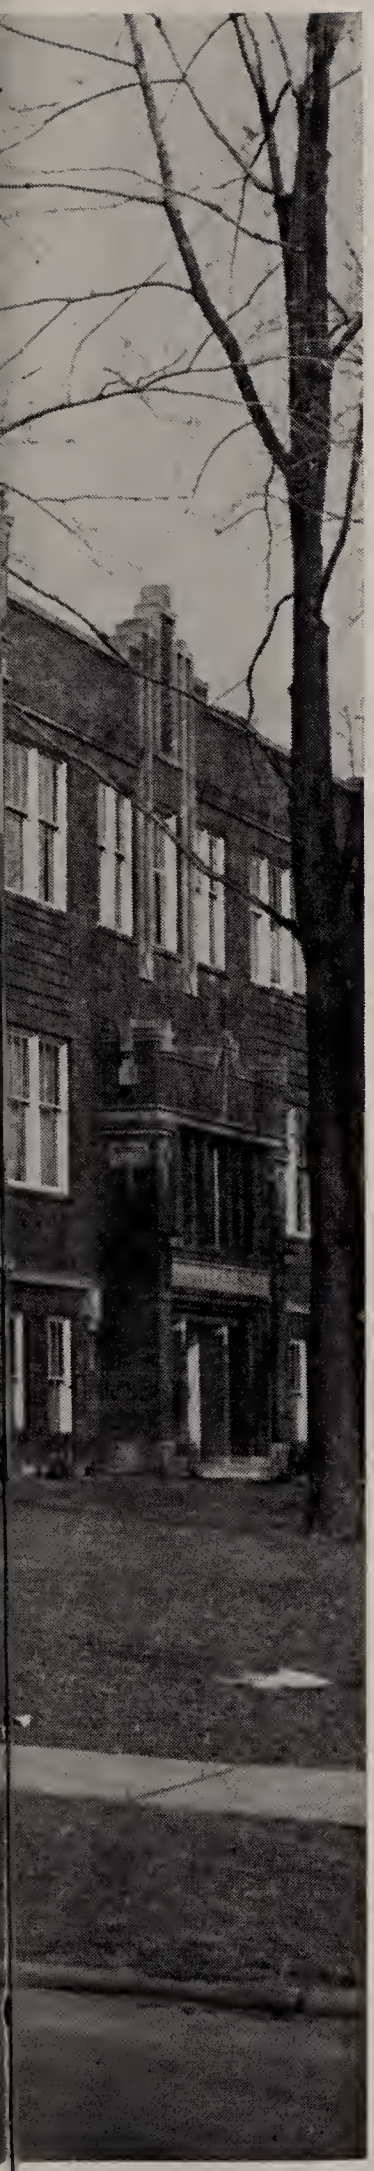
NAPPANEE HIGH SCHOOL

Nappanee, Indiana

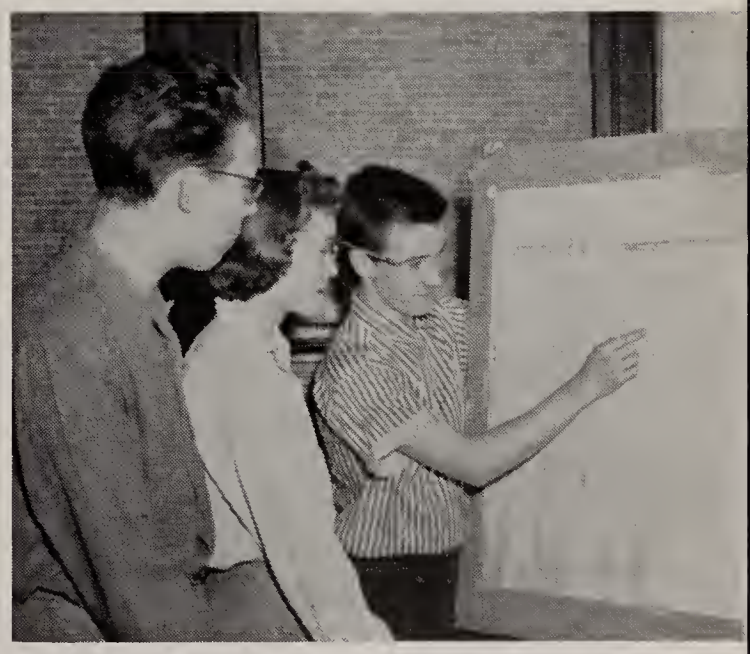


Blueprints for the Future

As the construction of our new school comes nearer realization, it is possible to see the sturdy, roomy building that we have been planning the past few years. Our school must expand along with our city in providing an adequate education for the men and women of tomorrow.

Just as blueprints make a sturdy building possible, our many phases of school life make up well rounded educational backgrounds for our lives in the future. Practicing good sportsmanship in athletic contests, working with people in clubs and organizations, learning to study for ourselves, and making new friends all contribute to that background.

George de Haas, Janet Klingaman, and Ronald Elliott, viewed blueprints of our future high school; let's look at the 1957 Napanet to see what our "Blueprints for the Future" are.



On August 6, 1957, Dale Christner, Robert Callander, Loren Hahn, Walter McDonald, Harrison Hossler, John Coppes, Haskell Osborn, Dr. Ray Fleetwood, Levi Tobias, Lowell McCuen, LaMar Stoops, Charles Lehman, and James Weddle broke ground.

Muddy bulldozers cluttered the future campus of N. H. S.

Steel girders made dangerous footing for construction workers.

Building went on in Mud, Wind and Sunshine

When the ground was broken on a warm August afternoon, our new school building was started. On cold, snowy, sub-zero winter days, on balmy, thawing, muddy spring days, and back again to warm summer days, the construction workers have been busy. Each day throughout the year the structure has come nearer completion.

Cranes, bulldozers, and cement mixers have become common sights to us as we watch the men put steel girders, pipes, bricks, and cement floors where they belong. As this program goes on and on, we are waiting for the day when we may witness the dedication ceremonies of this new building.

Cranes, girders, bricks, pipes, and many other construction materials were in evidence.

Progress was shown day by day as an open field became the promise of tomorrow.

After the formalities were over, the dance band, Three Hits and a Miss, dedicated a song, "True Love," to the king and queen.

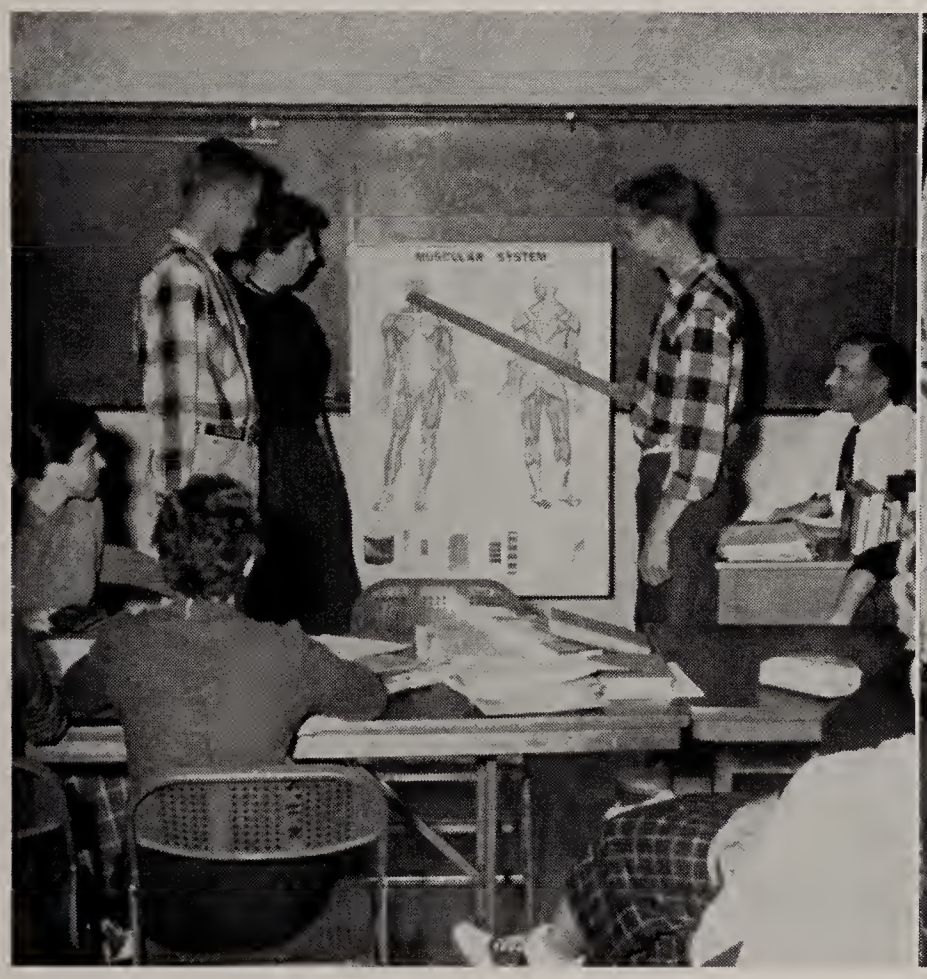
Skills . . . Theory . . . Bookwork . . .

Home economics classes, typing classes, shop classes, agricultural classes, and gym classes gave us a chance to develop our manual skills. In these classes we learned by doing. Because they are usually electives, these classes were small and informal.

Physical education students learned to play deck tennis.



John Enkoff identified a muscle by pointing it out to Judy Rose and Bob Scheets in Mr. Peden's health class.

Pat Thompson, Wendy Sheets, Larry Homan, and Gene Robinson learned from Mr. Hoover how to use a car jack.

. . . Gave Us the Background for Our Lives . . .

English, history, and basic mathematics courses are required for graduation. Often these general courses direct pupils in developing an interest in specific fields for future study and work.

Mathematics, physics, speech, and Latin are subjects generally chosen by students who are intending to go to college. Because they, too, are electives these classes are usually small and informal, and teachers are able to give students individual attention and to help them to learn how to study better.

At the board Jim Hamsher proved to Linda Chandler, Tom Conrad, Mr. Hartle, and Dave Stoops that it was possible to find an unknown side of a triangle by using a formula involving tangents.

John Kendall, Pat Thompson, Susie Field, Ralph Fink, Dave Arch, Tom Conrad, Dick Coppes, and Jim Lutes learned to balance scales in Mr. Rule's physics class.

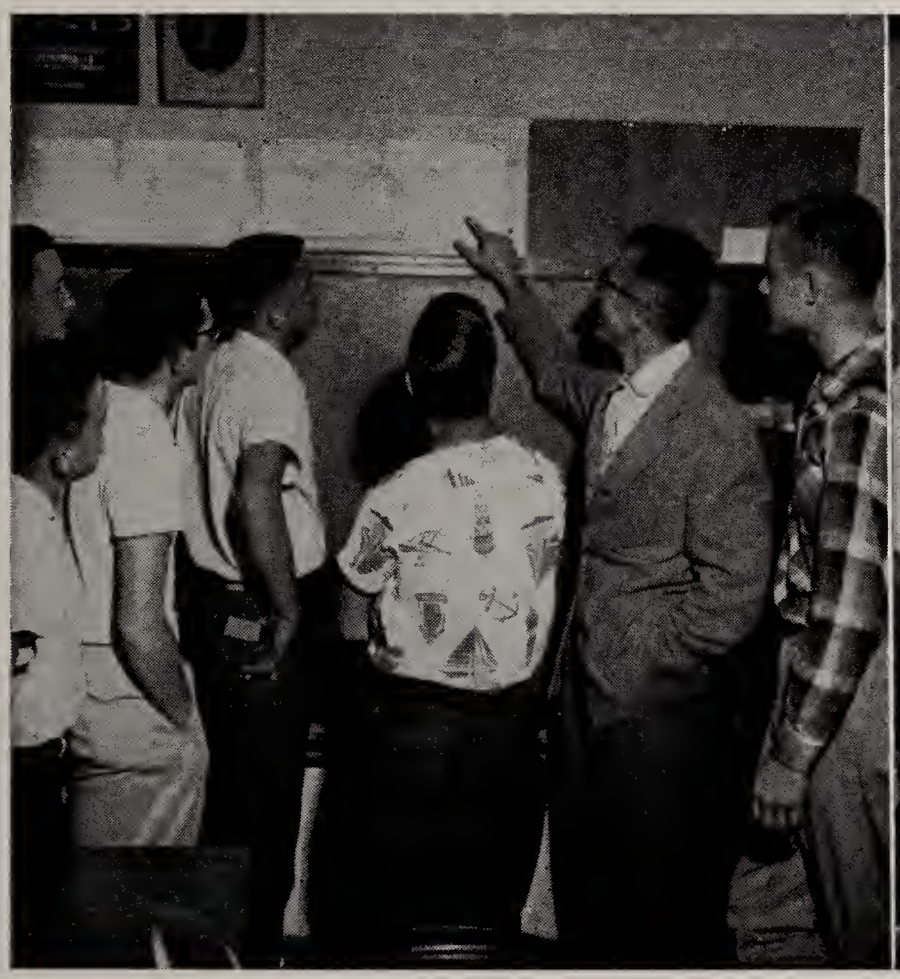
Sharon Stuckman located certain European countries for Jim Pippenger, Sue Ellen Pippenger, Devon Weaver, and Jean Swihart in world history class.

Thelma Miller and Jim Stouder admired Patsy Martin's sketch while Joanne Peltier continued to draw.



Mr. Copeland explained charts to Larry Burckhart, Dennie George, Rodney Stump, Wendy Sheets, Larry Otto, and Jim Stouder.

Merle Spicher, Dale Fink, Mr. Conrad, and Dick Conrad watched as Gene Robinson demonstrated safety measures in the use of a power saw.

Sonny and Pamela take over Uncle Jimmie's campaign for presidency of the Somerset Country Club and run into many interesting situations which eventually add a few grey hairs to Uncle Jimmie's head. Of course the new country club president is—you guessed it—Uncle Jimmie!

Activities

Many clubs and organizations are available for the varied interests of the students in Nappanee High School. By taking an active part in these activities, the students are able to develop their sense of responsibility and leadership and their ability to get along with other people.

One of these organizations was the pep band that entertained during the half time periods at basketball games.

Linda Chandler, Judy Martin, David Stoops.

The National Honor Society included eight seniors and three juniors who were elected by the faculty on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service, and character. Under the leadership of Mr. Paul Hartle, the group continued the project of recording for framing the names of all N. H. S. students who have been members of the National Honor Society. A new honor roll system was devised. Traditionally, tarnished trophies were polished by members of the organization.

On March 29 the chorus presented its annual Spring Concert. Selected from the chorus was a contest chorus which achieved a first place rating at the District Contest held in March. Some of the members of the chorus received awards at the District and State Solo and Ensemble Contests.

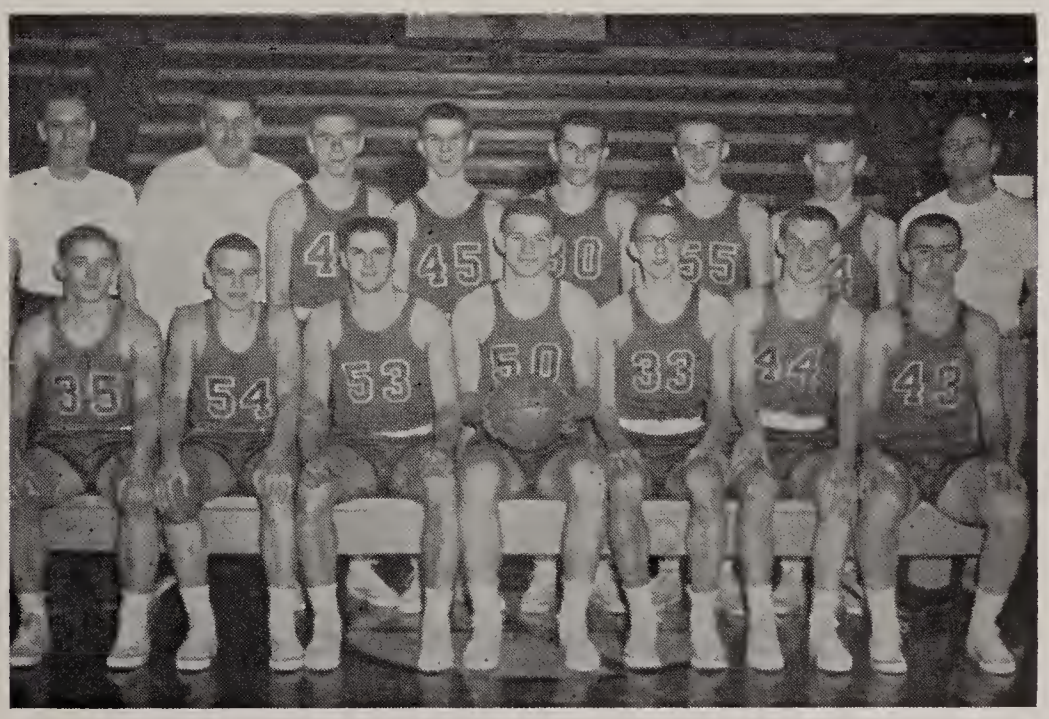
Athletics

The excitement of the lively competition in sports is brought to our attention more and more as we continue to make outstanding sports records. Developing good sportsmanship and individual ability is also a number one part of a good sports program.

The varsity basketball team exhibited these traits by their excellent performances throughout the year.



Sports Began In the Fall . . .

Coaches Joe Springer, Bill Peden, and Rollie Hoover.

Under the new head coach, Joseph Springer, who took over for Bob Courtney, the Bulldogs enjoyed another successful season, winning seven and losing two games. The losses were suffered to Rochester and Plymouth.

The Bulldogs had one of the biggest lines in years, led by All-State end, Larry Lakins. The backfield was small but excelled in speed. The backfield was helped tremendously by the addition of Rollin Hoover to the Nappanee coaching staff.

Changing the strategy of recent years, the Bulldogs took to the air. By throwing the ball, the Naps kept the opponents' defenses loosened.

In the past three years the Bulldogs have won twenty-two and lost four games. Because of this great record Nappanee has established itself as one of the football powers of northern Indiana.

With a record of nineteen wins and only three losses the Bulldogs finished one of the most successful seasons in recent years. Under the expert guidance of new mentor William Peden, and with spirit, determination and good sportsmanship, the Naps lost only to Elkhart twice, and to Goshen in the Holiday Tournament.

The Naps' cause was greatly helped with the addition of 5′ 10″ Bruce Tobias, who moved to Nappanee from Ohio. Returning from the '56 starting five were guard Vance Lopp and center Larry Lakins.

The Bulldogs beat three sectional champs, Plymouth, Kendallville, and Garrett.

The best performances were displayed against Middlebury, Garrett, and the Blue Blazers in the sectional.

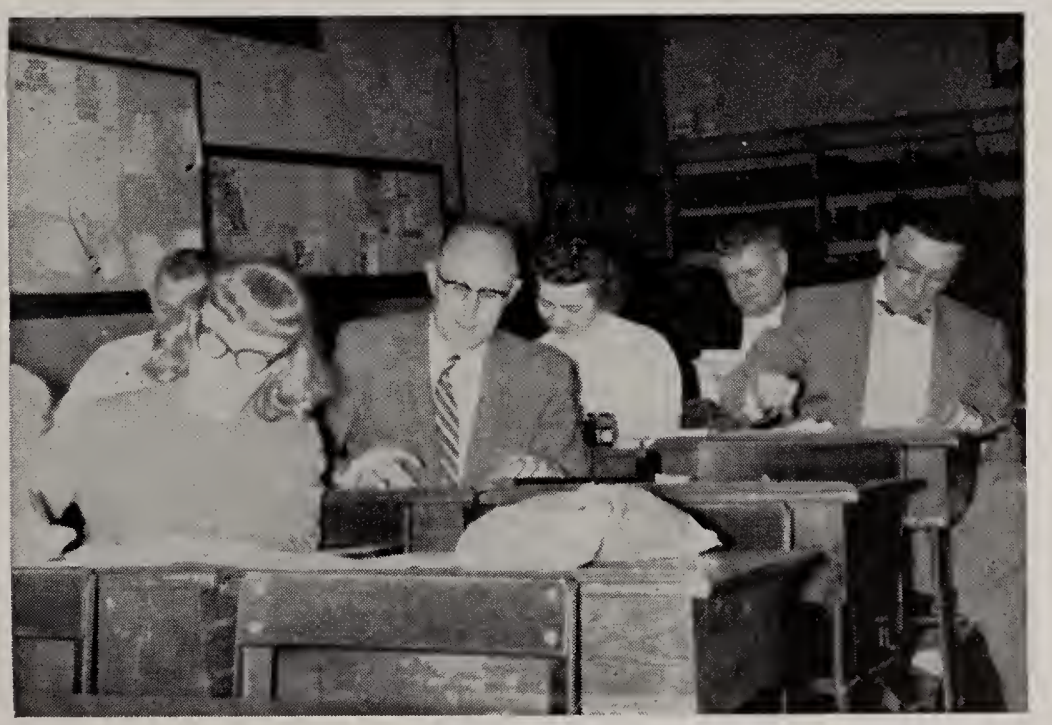
Faculty

Helping the student toward the goal of completing his blueprints for the future is a major task of the faculty.

In classes, activities, sports, and social events these teachers hold an important place in the development of the individual student.

Teachers estimated the progress of the students by recording grades at the end of each six weeks period.



Superintendent and Board of School Trustees

Mr. Haskell B. Osborn.

The administration of a growing school is a time absorbing occupation, particularly when a building program is in progress. Mr. Osborn has worked hard to see blueprints and plans materialize. In addition to administrative duties he has found time to help organizations of our school and to develop good public relations within our community.

These men were interested in the business problems of our community schools. They worked conscientiously in an endeavor to provide for us a school that meets the standards established by communities of much greater size.

Standing: Haskell Osborn, LaMar Stoops. Seated: Loren Hahn, Earl Slabaugh, Lowell McCuen, Dale Christner.

Principal and Office Personnel

Our principal, Mr. Weddle, was constantly trying to find new ways to keep in closer contact with both teachers and students. He was able to develop a unified program of curricular and extra-curricular activities by broadening the scope of direction and counseling.

Many and varied details have been handled competently by the three secretaries whose duties have included many types of work besides the skills of regular office routines.

Keeping Us Healthy and Well-Fed

Anna Woodhams, school nurse, examined students for ringworm.

Nurse

The many cases of flu, measles, mumps, colds, and pink eye have kept our nurse, Anna Woodhams, jumping. Besides watching our health, she found time to help the teachers with extra work and to talk with students about their problems.

Cafeteria

"How much are a sandwich and a carton of milk? Thirteen cents? But all I have is a dime; may I pay the rest later?" Our cooks, besides serving regular meals to grade and high school students, also had to put up with the many dieting girls who wanted just a part of the lunch!

Mrs. Snider, Mrs. Lockwood, Mrs. Farrington, and Mrs. Rassi planned and prepared an average of four hundred fifty lunches each day.

Bus Drivers

Come rain, sleet, snow, or ice our good natured bus drivers were always right on the job getting us noisy kids to school on time and safely back home at the end of each day.

Bookstore

Mr. White was in charge of our book rental program. In the bookstore, where numerous school supplies were sold, he had four girls helping him, two in the morning and two at noon.

Custodians

The maintenance of three buildings provided numerous duties for the custodians to perform. They were there when we arrived in the morning, left at night, and stopped in for forgotten books on Saturday.
